Restoration underway

Haliburton Highlands Outdoors Association volunteer Dennis McGee helps with the installation of coir matting along Gould's Creek behind the HHOA fish hatchery on Tuesday, Oct. 16 in Haliburton. This is part of the multi-phase Gould's Creek Brook Trout Restoration Project, which includes the installation of a new culvert upstream at Gould's Crossing and the transformation of the creek area as well as a documentary about the process. This project covers some 1.5 kilometres and is possible thanks to the Department of Fisheries and Ocean's Recreational Fisheries Conservation Partnership Program grant; the Great Lakes Stewardship Fund; assistance from industry professionals and the support of the community including the Casey family and Fowlers Construction. Read upcoming issues of County Life's sister paper, the Haliburton Echo, for details in the weeks to come or check out haliburtonecho.ca. /DARREN LUM Staff

Donate your gently used outerwear to Share the Warmth coat drive

As the leaves change colour and the temperature begins to drop, we are reminded that winter is just around the corner.

The third annual Share the Warmth coat drive kicks off this week in Haliburton and Minden. A joint initiative of SIRCH Community Services and EarlyON, Share the Warmth helps families and seniors stay warm all winter by distributing free coats and winter outerwear.

If you would like to contribute to the campaign, bring your clean, gently used coats and outerwear to any of the drop off locations throughout the county.

Drop off locations in Haliburton are Haliburton Foodland, Todd's Independent, Algonquin Outfitters, SIRCH Central (located at 2 Victoria Street), and the EarlyON centre at J.D. Hodgson Elementary School.

You can also drop off your items in Minden at Dollo's Foodland, Easton's ValuMart, St. Paul's Anglican Church and the EarlyON Centre at Archie Stouffer Elementary School.

Items are being accepted from now until Oct. 31.

The coats and outerwear will be given away on Saturday, Nov. 3 at St. Paul's Anglican Church in Minden and at SIRCH Central in Haliburton. Come by between 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. for some delicious chili, coffee and hot chocolate and giveaways for kids. All free of charge.

"Share the Warmth is a way for us and the community to help our neighbours stay warm this winter," said Angelica Ingram, communication specialist with SIRCH. "Winters in the Haliburton Highlands can be long and cold and having the right winter gear can make it much more bearable."

For more information about Share the Warmth call SIRCH at 705-457-1742.

Haliburton film festival releases lineup

"Being the Hero of Your Own Life," Nov. 2 to 4, Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion, Haliburton

"Whether I shall turn out to be the hero of my own life, or whether that station will be held by anybody else, these pages must show." From David Copperfield by Charles Dickens

The 12th Haliburton International Film Festival brings this theme to the big screen with seven inspiring and challenging movies that illuminate the quest to be the hero of one's own life. It all starts Friday, Nov. 2 at 6 p.m. with the Swiss film, Divine Order – based on women getting the right to vote in 1971 and coming into their own – and ending Sunday after the 10:30 a.m. showing of Tulipani: Love, Honour and a Bicycle – a film encompassing the passion, laughter, but also the heartache of a young couple immigrating to Italy.

Returning this year as pre-show amuse-bouches is DH3 – Dance Happens Here Haliburton. Renowned mime/dancer/choreographer, Noriko Yamamoto, is the guest performer with additional dance performances by Heritage Ballet Studio and a musical performance by Nicholas and Stanley Russell. These performances are presented in part through funding from the Government of Canada.

Indian Horse, based on the best-selling novel by Richard Wagamese, is Saturday night's feature presentation.

Passes are $60 and are available at the door or online at brownpapertickets.ca. Individual tickets are $10 at the door.

Lineup:

Friday, Nov. 2

6 p.m.

Divine Order (Die Göttliche Ordnung) 14A 96 min. Switzerland/Subtitles

Winner of the Audience Award for Best Narrative Film at the Tribeca Film Festival, The Divine Order is set in Switzerland in 1971 where, despite the worldwide social upheavals of the previous decade, women were still denied the right to vote. When unassuming and dutiful housewife Nora (Marie Leuenberger, winner of a Best Actress award at Tribeca) is forbidden by her husband to take a part-time job, her frustration leads to her becoming the poster child of her town's suffragette movement. Her newfound celebrity brings humiliation, threats, and the potential end to her marriage, but, refusing to back down, she convinces the women in her village to go on strike...and makes a few startling discoveries about her own liberation.

8:15 p.m.

The Silent Revolution (Das Schweigende Klassenzimmer) NR 111 min. Germany/Subtitles

An entire classroom of twelfth graders in the Communist-controlled German Democratic Republic is traumatized when they discover what is really happening during the Hungarian Uprising of 1956. This forbidden information brings them into conflict with the school and government authorities, and only by sticking together can they save one or all members of the class from persecution.

Saturday, Nov. 3

10 a.m.

Sir NR 99 min. India France/Subtitles

Set inside the skyscrapers of modern-day Mumbai, Sir is not your typical Indian love story, nor does it necessarily work out the way you would expect. But in this thoughtful study of class and the way it can both restrain and empower, writer-director Rohena Gera has crafted an intelligent romance within the confines of upper-crust Indian society.

2 p.m.

Lucky NR 88 min. United States

Having out lived and out smoked all of his contemporaries, the fiercely independent Lucky finds himself at the precipice of life, thrust into a journey of self-exploration, leading towards that which is so often unattainable: enlightenment. Acclaimed character actor John Carroll Lynch's directorial debut Lucky, is at once a love letter to the life and career of Harry Dean Stanton as well as a meditation on morality, loneliness, spirituality, and human connection.

4 p.m.

C'est La Vie (Le Sens De La Fête) PG 117 min Belgium/Canada/France/Subtitles

Charming French comedy about a disgruntled caterer working his last wedding event. Max (Jean-Pierre Bacri) is just trying to get through night, but has to deal with a cast of offbeat characters and a girlfriend who's flirting with a young server. Manic and earnest, the meticulously constructed plot whips by at a breakneck pace.

7:30 p.m.

Indian Horse 14A 101 min. Canada

Based on the novel by Richard Wagamese: in the 1960s, Saul Indian Horse is an Indigenous boy in northern Ontario who is forced into a Catholic residential school where he eventually develops exceptional skills as a hockey player. Saul must find his own path as he battles stereotypes and alcoholism.

Sunday, Nov. 5

10:30 a.m.

Tulipani: Love, Honour and a Bicycle (Tulipani: Liefde, Eer en een Fiets) 14A 90 min. Netherlands/Italy/Canada Subtitles

After losing his farm during the floods of 1953, a romantic Dutch farmer is tired of getting his socks wet. He cycles to Italy and decides to grow tulips in the sweltering heat of Puglia.

Top 10 reasons not to hunt moose

RIGHT NOW, as I write this, hundreds of intrepid moose hunters are out there, sitting on their stands waiting for a moose to pass by. I wish them the best of luck.

As for myself, I am not a moose hunter. Here are my top 10 reasons why.

1. By the time I pay for licences, gear, ammunition, ATVs, camp fees, butchering, and winches, that $40 steak at the grocery store doesn't seem so unreasonable.

STEVE GALEA
Humour Columnist

2. You don't have to carry grocery store meat out of a swamp.
3. No one ever put out their back lifting a grocery store roast.
4. I like to shoot heavy calibre magnum rifles as much as the next guy, but I like my shoulder blades where they are even more.
5. Every group I know has one tag and at least 12 hunters and sharing isn't my thing.
6. Blaze orange clashes with my eyes.
7. I don't have a garage suitable for hanging antlers on.
8. If I miss a moose, I'll never be able to say I am a good shot again.
9. My imitation of a cow in heat is too good.
10. The camp I was invited to serves beans every night.

Carol Off to speak at Pinestone this Sunday

On Sunday, CBC Radio's Carol Off of As It Happens will be the featured speaker at the Friends of the Haliburton County Public Library's Gala and Silent Auction.

Aside from her work on CBC, Off recently released a book called All We Leave Behind, detailing the true story of an Afghan family's escape from a murderous warlord.

The story involves Asad Aryubwal, who Off met when reporting in Afghanistan in 2002. He was featured in their documentary, speaking out about the misdeeds of one of the warlords. That act put Aryubwal's family in a dangerous situation, forcing them to flee their home.

Off found herself having to ignore journalistic norms to help the family, navigating bureaucracy to bring them to Canada.

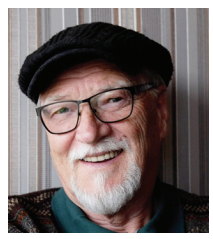
All We Leave Behind was winner of the British Columbia National Award for Canadian Non-Fiction and a finalist for several others, including the Governor General's Literary Award.

You can see Carol Off on Sunday, Oct. 28 at Pinestone Resort and Conference Centre. The silent auction begins at 1 p.m., author's presentation at 2 p.m. The event is a fundraiser for Friends of the Haliburton County Public Library and the cost is $25 (cash or cheque only). For tickets, contact Joan Hawley at 705-457-1789, email folhaliburton@gmail.com or pick them up at Master's Bookstore.

The sad, bizarre end of Professor Piano

IN THIS COLUMN on Sept. 20, my story was titled "The Professor is Missing." It was about my long-time friend Scott Cushnie, 80, who was indirectly responsible for bringing a kind of music to the Highlands not heard much in these parts. This music incorporates the blues, boogie woogie, R&B, soul and easy rock.

Cushine, aka Professor Piano, who was legally blind, played and recorded with such luminaries as Aerosmith, Robbie Robertson, Ronnie Hawkins, Duane Allman and Doug Riley. With other members of the band Diamondback he opened up the Canadian Blues Legends series in 2011, at the Dominion Hotel in Minden. He also performed two more times at the "D."



GEORGE FARRELL
On Arts/Culture

He was reported missing on Aug. 29, of this year and was last seen on Aug. 7 in the King Street East and River Street area of Toronto.

Cushnie's good friend Andrea Reid, and a cadre of close friends, worked with the police and put up posters all over downtown Toronto in an effort to locate the Professor, who had left his wallet and all identification in his apartment. But to no avail. He had simply disappeared. Then on Oct. 10, over two months since he was last seen, Reid received a call from detectives who asked her to come to the police station. At the station Reid met Cushnie's nieces. The police then told them a bizarre story, which Reid related to me.

On Aug. 8, in the Coxwell and Danforth area, paramedics in an ambulance driving by, witnessed a man trip and fall to the ground, where he hit his head on the pavement. The medics drove him to the nearest hospital, but a few days later he died of his injuries.

A family who had been looking for a lost relative identified the man as their relative and he was subsequently buried. However, the "dead" relative showed up some time later, very much alive. So the question is: who was buried?

The Toronto police showed the possessions of the buried man to Reid and Cushnie's cousins, and Reid identified a set of keys that she said belonged to Cushnie. "We are awaiting an exhumation and the coroner's report which will show dental records and DNA if necessary, to confirm that it is Scott," Reid said.

As I write this we are still awaiting the coroner's report, but it seems that there's little doubt now that the buried man is Professor Piano. So it would appear that the Prof was dead and buried even before he was reported missing. Reid was quick to allay any blame on the family who misidentified their relative.

"If you're already expecting that it's your family member who perhaps you haven't seen in a while – people don't look the same after they die – so it's not hard to misidentify someone," Reid said.

Reid first met Cushnie when Diamondback reunited in 2011, at ironically, the Dominion Hotel in Toronto. Reid quickly became enamoured of Cushnie's piano prowess and his humorous storytelling about the music and musicians he loved. Scott had an almost encyclopaedic memory of music from the turn of the last century. Cushnie offered to give Reid lessons and she subsequently became his friend, student, promoter and much more.

"I became his de-facto daughter," she said. "I helped him with his chores, his day-to-day living, helped him to find gigs, and I found him a better apartment," she said. "He became part of my family, and played at my wedding."

Reid also made a series of online videos called "Professor Piano's Lessons in Blues," which can be found on YouTube. "I regret we didn't make more videos," Reid said. But she's recently given birth, and the new family member has taken up much of her time in the last few months.

Reid also wanted me to tell my readers about the song "How Many More Years," a song Scott wrote for the album Diamondback 1974, and which can be found on iTunes. "It 's a brilliant piece of music," Reid said. I can also recommend the album Two pianos, no waiting, which he recorded with keyboard legend Doug Riley. And I'll always remember a line from one of Cushnie's driving, bluesy songs, which went "only one track open, and two trains comin."

There are many questions surrounding the Professor's death that we'll never know the answers to; like how had he ended up so far away from where he lived? Had he walked all night? Although legally blind, he was of sound mind and body, and he liked walking at night because he could see better without the daytime glare.

"I've lost a dear friend, and the world of music has lost such a wonder – his playing and knowledge of all the music before him. His love of music was infectious," Reid said. "And Scott had such a great sense of humour, he'd be getting a big laugh about all this."

When I hung up from my phone call with Andrea Reid, I too laughed at the ludicrous ending to my friend's life. Then I cried. Rest in peace, Professor.

> I've lost a dear friend, and the world of music has lost such a wonder.

How to improve winter fuel economy

Many motorists notice that their vehicles seem to get less kilometres per litre in cold weather than in warm weather. That's not a trick of the brain, as studies have shown that cars do, in fact, have poorer fuel in economy in cold weather.

According to the United States Department of Energy, fuel economy tests have indicated that, when driving in short-trip city driving, a conventional gasoline car's gas mileage is about 12 per cent lower at -6.7 C than it would be at 25 C. The disparity is even greater in hybrid vehicles, which can see their fuel economy decline by roughly 34 per cent when driven at -6.7 C. Before drivers can understand how to improve their winter fuel economy, it's beneficial to learn why cold weather has such an adverse effect on a car's fuel economy.

A host of factors combine to reduce fuel economy in the winter. When temperatures dip, engine oil and other drive-line fluids also get colder, and this increases engine and transmission friction. That forces the vehicle to work harder and use more fuel. An engine also takes longer to reach its most fuel-efficient temperature when the weather outside is cold. This won't have too great an impact on fuel efficiency when taking long trips, but the shorter the trip the less economical the vehicle's use of fuel will be, as a shorter trip means the vehicle is spending a larger percentage of the overall drive at a less fuel efficient temperature.

Another reason fuel economy suffers in the winter is the necessities and certain creature comforts drivers need when driving in the cold weather. Windshield defrosters and vehicle heating systems use a substantial amount of power, and that usage forces the vehicle to expend more energy and use more fuel. And while many drivers consider heated seats one of the greatest automotive inventions known to man, those seats also use up a lot of power that negatively impacts fuel economy.

But factors outside the vehicle also impact its fuel economy in the winter. For example, colder temperatures decrease tire pressure, and that increases roll resistance, which means the car must work harder and use more fuel to get down the street than it would if it were riding on fully inflated tires in the summertime. Cold air also is more dense than warm air, and that increases aerodynamic drag on the vehicle, which then needs to use more fuel to counter the increased drag.

So what can be done to improve fuel economy in the winter? Fortunately, drivers can take several steps to do just that.

- Park the vehicle in a garage. Leaving your car in the driveway in the winter means you might have to dig the vehicle out come winter snowstorms. But that's not the only inconvenience of parking your vehicle outside in the winter, as doing so can adversely affect its fuel economy. When possible, park the car in the garage, as this increases the initial temperature of the engine, engine oil, drive-line fluids, and the vehicle's cabin. This can shorten the time it takes for the engine to reach its most fuel-efficient temperature while decreasing the engine and transmission friction that negatively impacts fuel efficiency.
- Disregard conventional wisdom. Conventional wisdom has long suggested that idling a vehicle for several minutes will warm up the engine more quickly than simply driving. But many vehicle manufacturers now recommend that drivers idle their vehicles for no more than 30 seconds, noting that idling the car unnecessarily wastes fuel and that driving the vehicle is the fastest way to warm up its engine. If you must warm up the vehicle, stick to the now widely accepted guideline that recommends idling for no more than half a minute.
- Monitor tire pressure. As noted, colder temperatures decrease tire pressure, so drivers should monitor their tire pressure regularly throughout winter to keep their vehicle safe and to ensure they are not wasting fuel.
- Remove the roof rack. Summer adventurists who love tying their mountain bike or kayak to their vehicles' roof rack before heading off to explore parts unknown should remove those roof racks when the temperatures dip. Roof racks increase wind resistance and decrease fuel economy, so remove them during the off-seasons.

Fuel economy will almost certainly decrease when the mercury drops. But drivers can employ a number of strategies to make their vehicles more fuel efficient in cold weather.

Four ways to extend the life of your vehicle

Drivers can protect their investments in their vehicles – and get greater returns on those investments – by prioritizing maintenance and taking simple yet effective steps to extend the lives of their cars and trucks.

1. Drive defensively.

Aggressive driving is dangerous and can have adverse effects on a vehicle. When driving, always obey posted speed limits and avoid accelerating and decelerating quickly. Such a style of driving can strain vehicle engines and drive trains while negatively affecting fuel efficiency and wearing down brakes, states the National Institute of Automotive Service Excellence.

2. Maintain a clean vehicle.

Car washes do more than just clean a vehicle. Routine washing and waxing can remove dirt that, if left on a vehicle, can gradually scratch paint and contribute to chips and rust. Over time, rust can affect vehicle performance and may even compromise the safety of drivers and their passengers if bad enough frame rust affects structural integrity. Routine washing also can remove road salt from vehicles. Salt can build up during winter when roads are routinely treated during and after snowstorms. Road salt can be extremely corrosive and, if left unremoved from a vehicle, can contribute to rust that ultimately can cause extensive damage to a vehicle.

3. Routinely check tire pressure.

Many of today's new vehicles alert drivers when tire pressure is low. Drivers should not ignore such warnings, as low tire pressure can affect engine performance by forcing it to work harder than should be necessary. Engines that are forced to work harder than they need to likely won't last as long as those that run efficiently. Low tire pressure also negatively affects fuel efficiency, potentially costing drivers substantial amounts of money over time. Drivers of older vehicles without tire pressure alerts should routinely check tire pressure and keep tires adequately inflated. Vehicles that are slow to accelerate from resting positions may not have enough air in their tires.

4. Adhere to maintenance guidelines.

Drivers may have heard that today's vehicles were built to go longer periods of time between oil changes and tuneups than the vehicles of yesteryear. But drivers should still adhere to manufacturer-recommended maintenance guidelines. Upon buying new vehicles, drivers should read their owners' manuals to determine recommended maintenance intervals, and stick to those intervals for as long as they have their vehicles.

Cognizant of the sizable investments they're making when buying new vehicles, many drivers want to get as many miles out of their vehicles as possible. Simple maintenance and safe driving habits can go a long way toward keeping vehicles on the road for years to come.

Winter prep checklist

Fall is a time to prepare homes, vehicles and even our psyches for the arrival of winter. To get your car cold-weather ready, check and repair these items now.

- Tire pressure can drop in cold weather. When tires are underinflated, you lose fuel efficiency, so monitor and maintain tire pressure throughout the winter.
- Switch from all-season to winter tires. Much as you wear winter boots to provide more traction and protection than sneakers, so should you equip your vehicle with tires that will stand up to winter terrain.
- Check on the status of your battery and its starting power. Cold weather can put more strain on a car battery. A battery that is already weak may not turn over when you need it most.
- Replace worn wiper blades and upgrade to a windshield fluid that is rated for subzero temperatures. Each of these items will improve visibility when winter precipitation is making its presence felt.
- Schedule an oil change at the beginning of winter. Dirty oil can hinder cold-weather starts and, if coupled with low coolant levels, can make it difficult for the engine to turn over.
- Keep jumper cables, a battery booster pack and warning cones in your vehicle. These can come to the rescue if your battery dies and you're stranded on the side of the road.
- While you're stocking the trunk or cargo bed, include a shovel, sand or cat litter, a flashlight, an ice scraper, water, and a blanket. These are good emergency items to have in the event your car breaks down in the winter. You can dig your tires out of a snow drift with the shovel and apply litter to increase traction. The blanket will come in handy if you have to sit in a cold car for a while awaiting roadside service.
- Consider taking a winter driving course. Icy, snowy conditions completely change the defensive tactics needed to navigate the roads. A prepared driver is one who is more likely to avoid accidents and make it home safely.

Hunt sober, conservation officers remind hunters

The Ontario Conservation Officers Association is reminding hunters to always practice responsible and sober hunting.

The association issued the statement following the legalization of cannabis on Oct. 17.

"The handling of a firearm is a very serious matter and safe handling can't be stressed enough" said the association's president Sean Cronsberry. In addition to hunting sober, the association also reminded hunters to hunt safely and to remember ACTS and PROVE:

• Assume every firearm is loaded

• Control the muzzle direction at all times

• Trigger finger must be kept off the trigger and out of the trigger guard

• See that the firearm is unloaded – PROVE it safe

• Point the firearm in the safest available direction

• Remove all ammunition

• Observe the chamber

• Verify the feeding path

• Examine the bore

Anyone with information about a natural resources or public safety related offence is encouraged to call the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry violation reporting line at 1-877-847-7667, contact their local CO directly, or call Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

The Poet and the Singer wrap concert series for season

Oct. 28's presentation of The Poet & The Singer will mark the final concert of the 40th year of concerts presented by the Haliburton Concert Series. Celebrations are planned, including special refreshments during intermission.

The Poet is Jeff Pinkney, and The Singer is soprano Leslie Fagan, both of whom are Kennisis Lake cottagers. Lorin Shalanko will be the piano accompanist. Jeff is a prize-winning author. Leslie is the co-ordinator of voice at Wilfrid Laurier University, a regular guest at Carnegie Hall in New York City, and this year received the Order of Ontario for her services to music. Lorin accompanies many singers and instrumentalists, and teaches at Wilfrid Laurier University and The Beckett School of Music. The concert will be an intimate afternoon of lush singing, seamlessly combined with witty poetry to create a magical whole.

The concert will take place at 2:30 p.m. in the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion in Haliburton village.

Tickets are available by contacting Fred Shuttleworth at 705-455-9060 or fred.ann.shuttleworth@gmail.com. More information is available at www.haliburtoncs.blogspot.ca.

Celebrate what makes Haliburton County great

Has your son raised funds for hurricane relief? Has your nephew helped build awareness for child poverty? Has your daughter earned the highest-grade average within her school? Has your young neighbour volunteered to take out the garbage and shovel the driveway for an elderly couple? If you answered yes to any of these questions, you must nominate them today to be recognized with an Ontario Junior Citizen Award!

These are just some examples of what young people are capable of. There are outstanding youth across the province who are making a difference in many ways and they deserve to be commended for their hard work and achievements.

Who is eligible? Any Ontario resident between six and 17 in one of five areas:

- A person involved in worthwhile community service
- A special young person contributing to their community while living with a physical or psychological limitation
- An individual who has performed an act of heroism in the past year
- Excellence in achievement, such as the arts or athletics
- Good kids who show a commitment to make life better for others and do more than is normally expected of someone their age

Our newspaper strongly supports this program here in Haliburton County, because we care about the growth of our community. We look forward to providing recognition for such outstanding young people who continue to be an inspiration for others. The awards program is coordinated by the Ontario Community Newspapers Association, of which we are a member, and sponsored by TD Bank Group.

Up to 12 nominees will be chosen as the final recipients of the provincial award and will be invited to a special ceremony held in the spring of 2019.

Nominate a deserving young person today and help us celebrate what makes our community great.

Nomination deadline for the 2018 Ontario Junior Citizen Awards is Nov. 30. Nomination forms are available at www.ocna.org/juniorcitizen.

The senior LCVI Spartans outgunned the Redmen 3-1 in Haliburton last week, spoiling the Redmen's shot at locking up first place in the league. It's now a four-team race to the play-offs with just one game left to be played in the regular season. With a record of 2-2-1, the Redmen must defeat Fenelon Falls this Tuesday in order to have a chance of making the play-offs. For game details, see page 12.

International group introduced to Project WILD

A WILD time at Frost Centre

Educators from around the world had a "WILD Experience" at the Frost Centre near Dorset for three days last week.

The event was a conference which introduced Project WILD to international delegates. It showcased this environmental education program, Ontario's resource management strategies, and the Frost Centre.

Simply put, Project WILD is a program containing hundreds of activities that lead students to discover nature's interrelationships and values. Its popularity stems from its ease of use and its effectiveness in conveying the message of the importance of wildlife and wildlife conservation.

The program is being used by thousands of teachers in schools throughout Canada and the U.S. It is now being adapted for use in Czechoslovakia, Sweden and India.

Last week's conference at the Frost Centre gave delegates from Japan, Britain, Denmark, Spain, New Zealand and Australia a chance to learn more about this highly-successful educational tool.

In addition to the international delegates, the conference had participants from all across Canada. In total, there were 70 educators involved.

This was not the first time the Frost Centre has welcomed international audiences

WILD Experience was a partner event with the much larger ECO-ED, a world congress for education and communication on

Initiatives face mixed response at county

Initiatives to build a new county office and assume responsibility for local ambulance service will not have an easy ride when they come before county council this Wednesday.

Lutterworth Townships proposals to county council have been either hailed, condemned or ignored by municipal councils throughout the county. But when they come to the county this week, Lutterworth's representatives promise to push for their passage.

The most recent municipal council to address the resolutions was Stanhope Township. It rejected both, based on the argument that municipal councils should not be interfering in county business.

The first resolution urges the county to get started on plans for a new county administration building. Stanhope Councillor Eleanor Harrison said there is a need for a new building to house all the county services, but there

Vacant cottages targeted by burglars

The annual migration of cottage owners has made way for a flood of break-ins, thefts and vandalism throughout Haliburton County.

Over a recent 10-day period the Minden OPP detachment responded to more than 20 break-ins at cottages in the area, says Sergeant Steve Adam. In most cases, access was gained by breaking a window or banging down a door. A wide variety of items have been taken, including stereo equipment, boats and motors.

Preventing cottage break-ins is extremely difficult. However, there are a few steps that cottage owners can take to reduce the chances of their property being targeted.

Make sure the cottage is well secured with solid locks. Sticks should be placed in the path of sliding windows and doors in order to make them more burglar proof.

A securely locked building is no guarantee that vandals or thieves will not strike. However, it can serve as a deterrent.

Of all the property stolen, only about 10 per cent is ever recovered, says Adam. Part of the problem is the difficulty that police face in identifying the stolen property.

Keeping a record of serial numbers on items in a cottage or home would improve the recovery rate, says Adam. He also notes that the list should be kept somewhere other than the cottage or home.

Football history

Both Haliburton football teams are on the brink of making history in the Kawartha West division.

The junior and senior Redmen boast undefeated records - in fact, the seniors haven't even given up a touchdown this season.

With just one game left to be played, the teams are poised to win the division championship with perfect records. This would be the first time ever that both teams will have gone through the season undefeated.

This week's games are at home against Fenelon Falls on Friday. The first game starts at 1:30 p.m.
